FESTIVAL PROGRAM

ARTISTIC DIRECTOR WELCOME

The gates open once again to the 5th edition of Fantastic Film Festival Australia, a kaleidoscopic showcase of the world's most exciting voices in cult, genre, arthouse and alternative cinema.

Featuring 24 premieres, the festival kicks off with the highly anticipated Australian premiere of Sting from maverick Sydney filmmaker Kiah Roache-Turner (Wyrnwood). This righteous old school monster movie, expertly exploiting our innate fear of eight-legged critters, will make your skin crawl long after the credits roll.

Other highlights include Luc Besson's delirious Dogman, starring Caleb Landry Jones (Nitram); the stunning new 2K restoration of Geoffrey Wright's Romper Stomper follow-up, Metal Skin; the deranged love story Cannibal Mukbang; the controversial Sundance knockout Krazy House; and of course, no FFFA is complete without the annual nude screening. This year, we're excited to strip off for the iconic (and aptly titled) comedy classic The Naked Gun.

To end on a high note, we are wrapping up festivities with a 15th anniversary screening of Gaspar Noé's sensorial overload Enter The Void, accompanied by an original live score from Sydney electronic artist Corin.

And that's just scratching the surface. Each film in this year's program has been selected because we genuinely believe it's something you've never seen before, that will provoke, or that is just damn fun. We hope you enjoy the festival. Keep taking risks, and stay weird.

STING

— IN-PERSON Q&A WITH DIRECTOR KIAH ROACHE-TURNER

On a cold, stormy night, a mysterious egg falls from the sky and smashes through the window of a run-down New York City apartment building. From this egg emerges a strange little spider that is discovered by Charlotte, a rebellious 12-year-old girl who keeps it as a secret pet named Sting. As Charlotte's fascination grows, so does Sting and its insatiable appetite for blood. Neighbours' pets start to go missing, and so do the neighbours themselves. Soon, Charlotte's family and the eccentric tenants of the building realise that they are all trapped in the web of a ravenous, supersized arachnid with a taste for human flesh – and Charlotte is the only one who knows how to stop it.

The latest work from Sydney-based maverick Kiah Roache-Turner, Sting is a pitch perfect, old school monster movie romp, featuring an iconic Aussie cast (Ryan Corr, Alyla Browne, Noni Hazelhurst, Penelope Mitchell, Silvia Colloca) facing off against an iconic monster.

Get your exterminator suit on, and lets blast some creepy crawlies!

ENTER THE VOID

— WITH A LIVE SCORE BY CORIN

“★★★★★ This is a grandiose hallucinatory journey into, and out of, hell: drugged, neon-lit and with a fully realised nightmare-porn aesthetic that has to be seen to be believed.” — THE GUARDIAN

Oscar is an American drug dealer living with his sister in Japan. Killed during a drug bust, Oscar's spirit enters the astral plane. His journey through life after death takes him back to the past and through the present neon club scene of Tokyo after dark.

Gaspar Noé, a true outlaw filmmaker, cemented himself as the leading voice the of New French Extremity movement with his most challenging and exhilarating film: a hallucinatory meditation on life, death and rebirth, shot entirely in the first person. Described by Noé as a “psychedelic melodrama”, Enter the Void is a powerful, transcendent and immersive cinematic experience like no other.

The film is accompanied by an adaptation of the original score (which was a soundscape made in collaboration between Noé and Thomas Bangalter's of Daft Punk fame) from Sydney-based Filipina-Australian electronic music producer Corin, a leading figure in performance art and sound design for theatre and club spaces.

METAL SKIN

— IN-PERSON Q&A WITH DIRECTOR GEOFFREY WRIGHT

“Wright shoots and cuts with an energy that would make George Miller proud” — AV CLUB

Revheads, hot roads and satanic mysticism coarse through the mean streets of the Melbourne suburb of Altona in this singularly dark Australian thriller.

Joe, a timid teenager grappling with the challenges of caring for his ailing father, finds solace in his obsession with petrol-guzzling muscle cars. Joe worships his best mate and fellow gearhead Dazey (a young Ben Mendelsohn), whose womanising ways have strained his romance with Roslyn. Joe's bleak worldview begins to expand when he falls for the devil-worshipping mystic Savina. But it is Dazey that Savina truly desires, entwining the fates of all four on a journey destined for tragedy.

This breathtaking new 2K restoration awakens the complex depths of director Geoffrey Wright's follow-up to the classic Romper Stomper, breathing new life into its gritty aesthetic and revolutionary editing techniques, and making it ripe for rediscovery and a cult classic of cinematic grime.

THE RAID

SERBUAN MAUT

“A slam-bang, knock-your-socks-off action bonanza with some of the most peerlessly shot, performed and choreographed fight sequences you’re likely to see on screen.” — LA TIMES

Rama (Iko Uwais) is a rookie member of a special forces team trapped in the 30-story-high safe house of a notorious crimelord. What starts as a covert operation quickly unravels into a breathtaking battle of survival against highly trained goons as the squad traverses the building floor-by-floor, punch-by-punch.

The most propulsive 100 minutes in action cinema history, with backbreakingly intense fight choreography showcasing the traditional Indonesian martial form of pencak silat, The Raid was a bonafide classic on arrival. Every punch, kick and grapple hits even harder in this brand new 4K restoration, which turns the intensity up to a whole new level.

THE BRAZEN

BEZKAUNĪGIE

“...dissects the ugliest truths of a seemingly pristine family.” — CINEEUROPA

Helena feels unfulfilled in her marriage to university lecturer husband Rihards as they move with their children into a remote house in the countryside, where Helena hopes to renovate the run-down property and convert it into a dance retreat. They soon discover that the house, belonging to her late entomologist father, appears to be plagued by an endless infestation of bugs.

The infestation at the center of The Brazen creeps its way past the tropes of the “family moves into a fixer-upper home – frights ensue” horror and into the cracked façade of a seemingly perfect family, using black humour and psychological horror to evoke Lars von Trier as much as it does Argento and Cronenberg, and to crawl under your skin.

CANNIBAL MUKBANG

“...a veritable buffet of guts, blood, and bones.”

— HORROR PRESS

Shy and looking for love, Mark becomes smitten with the outgoing and mysterious Ash, who, much to his surprise, reciprocates the attraction. As his feelings for her intensify, so does his unexpected submersion into Ash's biggest fixation: the wild world of mukbanging. And with it, lots of bloodshed.

A dash of Jennifer's Body, a twist of Scott Pilgrim, and a pinch of Pearl are the tasting notes for this knockout indie rom-com turned gonzo exploitation horror by first-timer Aimee Kuge. Carried by a razor-sharp script, palpable chemistry between its lead performers, and enough blood and bone to make a butcher blush, Cannibal Mukbang is a deviant delight and certainly one of the most unhinged love stories ever set to celluloid.

THE CHILDE

GWI-GONG-JA

“★★★★ This twisty thriller...is what might happen if Quentin Tarantino, with a bit of an assist from John Woo, Park Chan-wook’s ‘Old Boy’ and the spirit of Alfred Hitchcock, had directed an episode of ‘Succession’.”

— HOUSTON CHRONICLE

In a bid to find money for his mother’s surgery, Marco, an amateur boxer living on the dark, grimy streets of the Philippines, searches for his estranged Korean father. When he’s visited by a group of mysterious guests claiming to be his father’s associates, Marco knows something is off. Before he knows it, he’s whisked away on a one-way flight to Korea with an eccentric assassin with Machiavellian objectives on his tail, leaving a trail of violence in his wake.

A neo-noir, non-stop nail-biter, The Childe features some of the most insane, gravity-defying action you’ll see this year, with slick, larger-than-life characters, touches of dark humour, and one of the most unhinged antagonists in recent memory.

THE DEEP DARK

GUEULES NOIRES

“...A taut genre exercise in fear and tension, The Deep Dark in its best moments leaves us as breathless as it does its motley collection of desperate, trapped miners”

— ALEXANDRA HELLER-NICHOLAS

In 1956, a crew of hardened coalminers are forced to escort a professor on an expedition into a cave one thousand meters beneath the surface. Trapped by a landslide and with no way out, they unseal an abandoned crypt, uncovering a godlike creature of Lovecraftian horror that reveals the true purpose of their mission.

Evoking horror classics like The Thing and The Descent, this claustrophobic creature feature grows more tense and intriguing as director Mathieu Turi delves deeper into the catacombs, crafting the kind of subterranean thriller that feels lost to time. The Deep Dark is the kind of creature feature that would always catch your eye at the video store as a kid, and somehow lived up to your most horrific hopes.

DIVINITY

“A boldly demented science fiction saga that melds the unsettling body horror of David Cronenberg and the seductive surrealism of David Lynch with a menacing video game-inflected spirit of its own.”

— THE DAILY BEAST

In a barren dystopia, scientist Sterling Pierce has dedicated his life to the quest for immortality, slowly creating the building blocks of a groundbreaking serum named ‘Divinity’. His son Jaxxon (Stephen Dorff) now controls and manufactures his father’s once-benevolent dream, and is developing plans to commercialise the drug, causing horrible ramifications for humanity. That is, until two cosmic brothers crash into the decaying Earth to abduct Jaxxon and put a stop to his monstrous scheme.

Written and directed by Eddie Alcazar, produced by Steven Soderbergh (Solaris) and gorgeously shot on 16mm black and white reversal film, Divinity is a mind-melting retro-futurist experience like no other. Featuring an eclectic ensemble cast that includes Stephen Dorff, former teen star Bella Thorne (The DUFF), four-time Mr. Universe champion Michael O’Hearn, TV star Karrueche Tran (TNT’s Claws) and contemporary adult film performer Emily Willis. This future cult classic must be seen to be believed.

DOGMAN

“Dogman may be the closest thing the director has come to making an autobiography — that is if you get past all the barking, mascara and blood.”

— THE HOLLYWOOD REPORTER

As a child, Douglas was abused by a violent father who literally threw him to the dogs. Instead of attacking him, the dogs protected him. Traumatized, and leading a life on the margins of society, completely isolated except for the company of his dogs, Douglas descends into murderous madness.

One of the most outrageous films of the year, this delightfully dark mix of Taxi Driver, Beethoven and even Home Alone features an incredible lead performance from Caleb Landry Jones (Nitram) as a man broken by trauma, disability and rejection, but held together by a deep passion for Shakespeare, Edith Piaf and exacting brutal vengeance alongside a four-legged army.

ROQYA

Life is far from easy for Nour, who is navigating the challenges of single parenthood while earning a risky living as a smuggler of exotic flora and fauna. In hopes of a better future for her son, she creates a mobile app that connects clients with mystical marabout healers. At first, it seems like they're on the path to success, but after a patient's consultation devolves into tragedy, Nour faces a backlash of extreme violence that threatens her son's life and her own.

A riveting feature-length chase starring Golshifteh Farahani (Paterson) and Denis Lavant (Holy Motors, Beau Travail), Hood Witch's thrills are packed with social commentary, offering a refreshing take on the ways in which social media can fuel the flames of outrage. KRAZY HOUSE

"This is the American dream – and the nuclear family – bloodily exploded." — SIGHT & SOUND

Christian homemaker Bernie (Nick Frost) and his wife Eva (Alicia Silverstone) live with their perfect family in an idyllic 1990s sitcom, complete with canned laughter. When cracks start to appear in their blissful, TV-friendly lives, Bernie enlists the help of a bloodthirsty Russian criminal and his crack-smoking, mullet-toting teenage sons. Soon enough, their reality devolves into increasingly violent chaos, and when Bernie's faith is pushed to the ultimate breaking point, a voice speaks to him from the great beyond to "kill them all".

Coming hot off its infamous Sundance premiere, this utterly unhinged comedy features one of the most bananas genre shifts since Hot Fuzz. The English-language debut from Dutch provocateurs Steffen Haars and Flip Van der Kuil, Krazy House consistently outdoes itself with increasing levels of depravity and blood-curdling horror. A bonafide cult hit in the making, nothing is sacred in this gloriously unsettling nuking of the family unit.

THE LAST STOP TO YUMA COUNTY

“Galluppi knocks it out of the park with his take on the crime thriller with a sprinkle of pitch-black comedy”

— DREAD CENTRAL

A travelling knife salesman (Thunder Road's Jim Cummings) is caught in a twist of fate when a pair of fleeing bank robbers storm a roadside diner after a routine stop. The diner's patrons and staff are thrust into a perilous hostage scenario and, like a pot of hot bitter coffee, tensions brew as allegiances shift, drawn guns sway power and the bank heisters' spoils await the last man standing.

With a simple premise, sharp-tongued dialogue, and an ensemble of beloved character actors as a cast of oddball locals, this directorial debut is a single-location crime thriller that delights at every tense turn.

Harkening back to an era of revisionist genre cinema like Reservoir Dogs, Fargo and Two Hands and slyly infused with fresh humour and nasty personality, The Last Stop in Yuma County is a genuine blast from a new filmmaker of immense promise.

MAMI WATA

“★★★★ The sleek, stark images of this film are hypnotic; the faces are compelling and the hallucinatory finale is rather inspired. An arresting piece of work.”

— THE GUARDIAN

In the oceanside village of Iyi, the revered Mama Efe acts as an intermediary between the people and the all-powerful water deity Mami Wata. When a young boy is lost to a virus, Efe's devoted daughter Zinwe and skeptical protégé Prisca warn Efe about unrest among the villagers. With the sudden arrival of a mysterious rebel deserter named Jasper, a conflict erupts, leading to a violent clash of ideologies and a crisis of faith for the people of Iyi.

Nigeria's third-ever Oscar entry, this potent modern fable from C.J. Fiery Obasi deploys vivid, monochromatic black-and-white cinematography, rich sound design, and a hypnotic score in a folk-futurist style, both earthy and otherworldly, to depict a pitched battle between opportunistic militants promising technological progress and a matriarchal spiritual order living in fragile harmony with the ocean.

Mami Wata transports us to a place that seems both suspended in time and perhaps running out of time as the threats of modern life wash upon its shores.

MONISME

“A fantastically avant garde work of docu-fiction that is fabulously shot and sonically designed.”

— LETTERBOXD USER GLENN DUNKS

After a genre-bending, form-defying and rule-breaking run of shorts dealing with AI cyborgs, geoengineering and tropical mysticism, rising star Riar Rizaldi makes his feature debut with Monisme.

Mount Merapi, the world's most active stratovolcano, hangs over the city of Yogyakarta like a ticking time bomb. Many communities and subcultures inhabit the volcano's ridges and valleys, each with their own conception of Merapi. Gangsters roam the region, thirsty for blood; volcanologists study the earth, hoping to preempt disaster; and miners work in the shafts, just making ends meet.

Riar's boundary-pushing style reaches new highs in Monisme, taking us to the unexpected nexus of B-horror, hybrid doco, and gangster flick, culminating in an animistic trance freak out, and leaving us asking where the line is between fact and fiction, and between this plane and the next.

NEW LIFE

"...As the film's initial scope of Jessie and Elsa continues to zoom out, we suddenly all know the traumatic horror of New Life all too well. And we feel for our hero to a depth that action-thrillers have never known. What a delight, what a discovery." — ROGEREBERT.COM

Jessica is on the run. Scrounging for her next meal whilst dodging the authorities who are hot on her tail, her life has been ripped from her for reasons she cannot fully comprehend. All she knows is that she has to make it to the Canadian border to regain some form of freedom. On the other side is Elsa, a 'fixer' operating in a legal grey zone, tasked with hunting down Jessica. As the pursuit tightens, a horrific truth is revealed, and the stakes of their inevitable confrontation become greater than either of them could have ever imagined.

A powerhouse thriller that begins as a classic game of cat and mouse, only for the rug to be pulled from underneath us as it shifts into jaw dropping, unexpected territory, keeping us on the edge of our seats as its many layers begin to peel away. New Life is a blazing debut from John Rosman, who treats us to a fresh, commanding and unforgettable chase film of world-ending proportions.

ONCE WITHIN A TIME

“★★★★ Once Within a Time proposes that, in the search for viable alternatives to techno-fascism and climate apocalypse, we might look to the margins of our world, to unfulfilled experiments (including those of cinema) and cultures supposedly left behind by history. It’s still not too late to set ourselves on some other trajectory.” — SLANT MAGAZINE

After ten years, celebrated auteur Godfrey Reggio (Koyaanisqatsi) returns with a bold new experimentation unlike anything we’ve seen in his already daring career: a bardic fairy tale about the end of the world and the beginning of a new one, tinged with apocalyptic comedy, rapturous cinematography, unforgettable vistas, and the innocence and hopes of a new generation.

Featuring an electrifying score composed by Reggio’s longtime collaborator Philip Glass, with additional vocals from Sussan Deyhim, and co-directed by veteran editor and filmmaker Jon Kane, Once Within a Time is the indie revelation of the year.

ONE PERCENTER

“Pure action filmmaking confidence executed on a level most in the world could only hope to achieve... one of the great action films of 2023.” — CINAPSE

Takuma Toshiro is a man with only one goal: the perfection of action film acting. When his samurai-like approach to this holy profession clashes with an industry addicted to wires, CGI and quick edits, Toshiro and his trusty apprentice, Akira, decide to make their dream film themselves. When actual violence finds its way onto their film set in the form of yakuza mobsters looking for a hidden cache of drugs, Toshiro and Akira are suddenly thrust into very real action. Is this the ideal opportunity to take his profession to the next level? As lives are lost and chaos ensues, Toshiro finds that the gap between action film “fantasy” and “reality” isn’t quite what he thought.

Adrenaline-pumping, pure action filmmaking featuring some of the best martial arts choreography since The Raid (also screening in this year’s FFFA), One Percenter is both an invigorating love letter and five finger punch to a genre in dire need of a fresh vision.

PANDEMONIUM

“...a disturbing and distressing manifestation of the afterlife.” — THN

Nathan wakes up on a cold, desolate mountain road, unsure how he got there. He's not alone though. Other tortured figures emerge around him, similarly perplexed by their strange situation. When two mysterious doors suddenly appear on the road, they soon realise that a moment of divine judgement is upon them.

A macabre spin on Dante's Inferno and Milton's Paradise Lost, multi-disciplinary director Quarxx pushes us through a series of increasingly twisted fantasies, delving into the darkest recesses of the human experience to construct this multi-textured existential fantasy. His signature spin on visceral horror, peppered with surprising moments of comedy, conjures a disturbing but deeply profound vision of madness, sin, suffering and the terror of our own mortality.

THE PRIMEVALS

“A wonderful throwback to the films that once inspired us.” — SCREENANARCHY

A film over 50 years in the making, The Primevals is the culmination of the life's work of the legendary Oscar-nominated visual effect artist David Allen (Howling, Young Sherlock, Ghostbusters II, Willow). After budgetary woes and David's tragic early passing at just 54, the film sat unfinished for decades – until now. A glorious tribute to the classic films of Ray Harryhausen and 70s special effects, blending stop motion animation with live action, The Primevals is a true time capsule, and a remarkably eye-popping adventure in its own right.

Deep in the Himalayas, a group of sherpas kill a towering humanoid creature. Convinced that it is the legendary Yeti, Dr. Claire Collier organises an expedition with a crew of experts, including her former student Matt Connor, a long-time believer in the creature's existence, and big-game hunter Rondo Montana, to search for more specimens. What awaits them is something bigger and more frightening than what any of them could have imagined.

VINCENT MUST DIE

VINCENT DOIT MOURIR

“Come for the violence, stay for the giggles”

— DREAD CENTRAL

Random strangers have suddenly started attacking Vincent with murderous intent in this nerve-shredding, ground-breaking movie riding the new wave of French horror. Vincent’s existence as a completely unremarkable man is overturned, and as things spiral violently out of control, he is forced to change his life completely.

An apocalyptic, bodysnatching, zombified horror-comedy-romance (yes, you read that right), this devilish genre mash-up is as outrageous as it sounds, but at its core is a wickedly clever satire of our collective capacity for anger and selfishness in the modern world.

After premiering at Cannes Critics’ Week and snatching up two top prizes at Sitges, Vincent Must Die might just make you want to shove a pencil in a co-worker’s eye.

THE VOURDALAK

LE VOURDALAK

“A dark, delicious fairytale fantasy brought to life with profound emotional integrity, The Vourdalak breathes new life into the far-too-often pedestrian vampire movie.” — ALEXANDRA HELLER-NICHOLAS

Lost in a hostile forest, the Marquis d’Urfé, a noble emissary of the King of France, finds refuge in the home of a strange family whose patriarch, away at war, returns in the form of the vampiric Vourdalak.

Based on A.K. Tolstoy’s classic gothic novella, a proto-vampire story preceding Stoker’s Dracula by 50 years, The Vourdalak is a refreshing depiction of the iconic horror monster that is unafraid to embrace its gothic roots. Reminiscent of old school Jean Rollin and Hammer Horror, with authentically vintage 70s vibes, The Vourdalak is just as dreamy as it is scary.
